"It's Decided" to air for the first time in advance of February 24 release

TORONTO, Feb. 13, 2015 /CNW/ - SiriusXM Canada (TSX: XSR), the country's leading audio entertainment company, today announced the world album premiere of It's Decided, the collaborative LP from legendary singer-songwriter Andy Kim and Broken Social Scene's Kevin Drew, to air on Canada Talks (channel 167) at 4 pm EST on Saturday, February 14.

Appearing together publically for the first time to discuss the hotly anticipated project, Kim and Drew sat down with SiriusXM host and record label executive Eric Alper on ThatEricAlper's Show to play cuts from the new album, walk listeners through each song and discuss their musical partnership.

In the interview, Kim, the renowned recording artist says about working with Drew on the album, "There aren't too many people that you work with that you want to hang around with. There was this spirit in Kevin, there's this connection, it's based on a relationship built on trust, respect, and love".

Drew, celebrated solo artist and co-founder of Canada's beloved Broken Social Scene, goes on to say, "It was very beautiful to be with someone that we could just say, 'Let's just write something.' There was nothing holding us back."

It's Decided, which is already receiving early critical acclaim, will be released on February 24, featuring the first single "Shoot 'Em Up Baby," an imaginative reworking of the original hit, released by Kim in '68. Joining Drew and Kim on the visionary album includes producers Dave Hamelin (The Stills) and Ohad Benchetrit (Do Make Say Think), as well as the voices of Kevin Hearn (Barenaked Ladies), John McEntire (Tortoise), Ron Sexsmith and Jeff Barry.

The full one hour special will air at 4 pm EST on Saturday, February 14 and replays throughout Sunday and the next week on Canada Talks (channel 167).
